THE CAMP AND SURROUNDINGS

A Bear Scare and Formation of a Bear Brigade in the Night. The Terrible Rifle Drill That Scared the Bear Out of the Country.

CHAPTER II.
Greenlow Camp.

To appreciate the good spirits in Camp Greenlow after the first night passed there, one must have slept on a fragrant bed of balsam boughs after a hard day's outing, with the prospect of a fortnight's hunting to begin at the next morning's daybreak. The four hunters and guides were astir early. The roll call showed all to be in the "pink of condition." We will omit the exact wording of that roll call. After breakfast and while the two guides were preparing lunches to be taken on the long tramp in prospect, let us look about the camp. It was on the site of an old lumbering camp, the four log buildings of which made our hunting home. One of these buildings, which had been the sleeping quarters of the chopping crew, was fast falling to pieces and its roof let in the sunshine and the rain. The long, low log barn for the accommodation of the lumbermen's horses was still in good repair and stood within two or three steps of our own cabin, where for the first week we slept and ate and where the cooking was done too. It was all of logs and in size about 16x20 feet, the eaves about seven feet from the ground, the roof running to a peak. It was neat and clean. Inside were the two bunks, in one corner of the room, one above the other, and spread with balsam boughs and heavy woolen blankets. There too was the wooden table covered with oil cloth, and the old camp cook stove, piled around with wood. In the corner next the stove, which was opposite the bunks, was the cook's supplies. About the walls were hung coats, bells, guns and what not, while stuck away on the logs everywhere were books, cartridge boxes, pipes, knives, etc. Just to the rear of this log mansion was another still smaller sleeping camp, with just enough room in it for four bunks where eight persons could sleep, and where the guides slept the first week and which the four hunters occupied after that. It was a room, too, for a little box camp stove of sheet iron, and room for a good time and a little tobacco smoke. That was its limit. Behind these two camps ran a brook of ice-cold spring water coming down from a ridge a half mile to the west, and as it fell over a little cascade it made music for the camp night and day.

The First Day's Hunt.

The camp was in a little clearing and an old logging road led by it, east and west, out into the great woods that stretched away unbroken for miles. But we are ready to leave camp now for the first day's hunt. The judge starts with George, the guide, for a series of low hardwood ridges to the south. Rowe is off with "Old Macbias" for the Machias river and lake, 10 miles west, while Rob and Spud start for the Greenlow stream. All day the sun shone bright in the great woods and all day the hunters hunted, and at dusk there was a reunion at camp. Judge and his guide came in carrying a fine buck's head and several steaks from a doe. "There had been a double killing, and the judge remarked that "this is a good deal like doing business in slaughter house." "Old Macbias" remarked that the editor's shooting of a doe in the middle of the Machias river where it could not be gotten out was no reason for taking a vow not to shoot any more does forever. "Shoot 'em every time" was "Old Macbias's" motto. Rob and Spud kept close to the camp but had several partridges to show for the day's tramp, and a bright fire in the old stove was their welcome to their more belated fellow hunters. How tired we all were, how we ate for almost an hour, how we lit our pipes and listened to Bret Harte's stories for an hour, and how judge won at his new game, must be left to the imagination. It can't be told in print, for where it is the bright moon, the great silent forest, the crackling old stove, the sweet scent of balsam, the music of the little brook, and the guides with their chins in their hands on the old log seat, to punctuate the story?

Star and Buscombe.

All was still in camp, and the two lanterns hanging from the rafters had been put out. Presumably the day's history was at an end, for all four hunters were rolled in their blankets, and the heavy breathing of the two guides in the adjoining tent was all that broke the stillness of the moonlight night. But Rob had to take a farewell peak out of the camp door. A white apparition crossed the floor and noiselessly opened the cabin portcullis which had no lock. "Gee Willikins Gee!" exclaimed the man in white, and Rob was taking down his rifle from the wall. "Get up, boys, I saw him." The boys got up in almighty short order. Every rifle was instantly seized, the door again noiselessly opened, and Rob took another look. It was gone. "Well, I saw it out there by the corner of the old shanty, and it was about three feet tall and looked gray." Then Robert had some fun poked at him. But he insisted that he was sober and sane and had seen a big animal near the old shanty. A council of war was summoned, and it was decided to throw a rock over onto the old building and listen. This was done. Rob was right. Off through the bushes dashed

LEASED THE WILSON.

Manager Meade Will Make the Columbia a More Desirable Place.

Manager Meade of Columbia opera house has leased the Wilson opera house and will immediately assume its management. Mr. Meade has a high aim as well as business prospects in this move. He means to make Columbia opera house better known as a house of the best attractions than it has ever been. His determination is that nothing but the best plays will be engaged for that house and that all of the common attractions will be booked for the Wilson. By following this plan he hopes to be able to make the name of the house on Centre street synonymous with high class plays and artists.

He also hopes to be able to institute regulations governing the conduct of the patronage of the house that will be appreciated by those who care to have the surroundings equal to the work on the stage. The restrictions that will be imposed will look to the elimination of all of the offensiveness that some careless persons have practiced in the lower priced seats.

There will be no increase of price and there will not be any extreme aimed at in any way, but the management will be in a position to insist on certain observances that will be appreciated by persons of refinement no matter in what row of seats they sit.

LONG ELECTRIC LINE.

An Electric Railroad is to Be Built From Northampton to Pittsfield.

The Pittsfield Journal of Tuesday evening stated that a plan is on foot to build a trolley line from that city to Northampton and that "work will begin as soon as the company is formed and the money raised." Both these conditions will be necessary to the success of the project, which is deemed to have Chicago capital back of it. Surveys have not yet been made, but the Journal says the route will be directly over the mountains Windsor way. The road will be carefully built and thoroughly equipped. The matter of fare has not yet been decided.

A franchise has already been secured for part of the distance to be covered—over at the Hampshire end of the route. This is contained in chapter 328, act of 1885, and was approved April 30, 1885. The incorporators named are: Lyman D. James of Williamsburg, Alvan Barris of Goshen, John O. Hammond of Northampton, John Olmsted, Austin E. Smith, John A. Sullivan and Newrie D. Walter of Springfield. The company is styled "The Western Hampshire Street Railway company" and its franchise covers the towns of Williamsburg, Goshen, Chesterfield, Worthington, Huntington and Cummington.

E. D. Cady Remembered.

E. D. Cady, clerk of the court and who has been for many years connected with the H. Torrey Cady shoe factory on Lincoln street, was waited upon Monday evening by Miss Lizzie Crews and a committee representing the operatives of the stitching department of the shoe factory and was presented a beautiful silk umbrella and a handsome gold headed cane. The presentation was the acknowledgment of years of a very high expression of the mutual interest was ever kept strongly in mind. It was not a relation of boss and submissive servant, but one of fellow workers, in which was recognized a reciprocal helpfulness and also the common limitation and good. The articles were passed to Mr. Cady without speech or display, and were received with a pleasant and the recalling of past times that did not admit of a lengthy outpouring of words. There was a gratefulness on both sides that was well understood and needed no verbal expression. The cane and umbrella were presented to Mr. Cady when he was at the home of his brother on Church street. He had no intimation that the articles were to be given him, and when he could not respond to a call by telephone, the purpose of which he did not know, the women made their way to the house and gave Mr. Cady the articles in a delightful informal way on the porch. Mr. Cady treasures the gift, though it will not make more pleasant his memory of the days in the factory with "his girls."

Paving the Street.

The paving of Main street is going on merrily and the people are very much interested in it. Some have looked with alarm on the imperfect brick that are finding their way into the pavement. All of these bricks will be removed and good ones put in their places. No imperfect brick will be allowed to remain in the pavement. After the brick is laid they will be rolled with a 16-ton roller and then the cement grouting will be swept into the interstices. The pavement will then be allowed to set for several days and then will be opened for traffic.

The people interested in the laying of the pavement are causing no little annoyance to the contractor and no little damage to the work. The walking on the pavement fills the interstices with sand which will prevent the grouting getting into proper place. The department of public work may ask the people to be more considerate of the public interest.

DIABOLICAL WORK

It is Now Believed that the New York Central Wreck Was Plotted.

Cold Springs, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The suspicions which were only breathed in whispers last night, that the terrible disaster to the state express on the New York Central railroad on Sunday morning which sent 20 souls to eternity was the work of a diabolical plot, gained strength among their men this morning and the opinion was expressed by more than 10 officials that the train was sent to its destruction by human, or more fittingly, inhuman hands.

"If the bank of the railroad was torn up by dynamite, the motive of those who did it was not robbery but revenge," was the startling statement made by one official of the road. The suspicion of their people having been aroused, a rigorous investigation is being made, and at least one man may be arrested today.

When the party of 26 roadmasters of the New York Central railway system arrived at the scene early Monday morning and commenced a critical survey of the section of the embankment which had been either washed or blown out, one of the roadmasters, a man who had great experience in the use of dynamite, said to his fellow officials that the excavation looked to him very much like the work of dynamite. He had used this powerful explosive a great deal in his work on the Adirondack division of the railroad and consequently is familiar with the effects.

The Associated Press representative was informed this morning by a gentleman who travels from Garrison to New York every morning that three weeks ago this same train, No. 48, had a narrow escape from being wrecked at a point about two miles south of the spot where it finally met its fate. A huge boulder, weighing two tons was discovered in the track just in time for the train to be stopped.

"I made the remark that morning that I believed some one had put that stone there and I still think so," said this person. The boulder must have fallen from the top of the mountain for it cleared the inland track in its fall and landed squarely in the down track. "It looks to me as if some one bears a grudge against the railroad company but who it is I cannot say."

A Fine Company.

Every seat in San Souci was taken last night when Bates Bros. big comedy company produced "The Buckeye." For a repertoire company playing at popular prices they are as good as any ever seen in this village and it is safe to predict that the opera house will be filled every night.

"The Buckeye" is a four-act drama, and gave the excellent company a chance to display their abilities. Miss Lettie Wright, a vivacious actress, heads the company and has good support. Fine specialties are introduced during the play and kinetoscope pictures are shown, which goes to make a pleasant evening's entertainment.—Stamford, Conn., Times.

This company will open a week's engagement at Wilson opera house Monday evening at popular prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Fifteen-cent supper at the Columbia opera house this evening from 5 to 7. Dancing will also take place.

Mrs. M. C. Elliot, who addressed the Friendly Girls' society at the parish house of St. John's church last evening, will give a "health talk" to mothers and daughters at the same place Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All are cordially invited. Mrs. Elliot is connected with the "Viv" association.

The Sullivan block, the front of which will be of Indiana limestone, will be a fine looking building when finished. The laying of the front has been begun and the stone is very handsome. The building will be six stories high, and standing at the head of State street, it will show up well to strangers coming into the city. Not much Indiana limestone has been used in this section. The new bank in Pittsfield and the D. K. E. house at Williamsburg are trimmed with it, and so far as known, these are the only buildings in the county containing any of this stone.

Or Miss Gertrude Dymond, who will sing in the concert to be given at the Baptist church next Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Missionary society, the Salem News says: "Miss Dymond's original favorable impression was deepened last night and the audience could not apparently hear her often enough. She sang seven times during the evening and her voice was as fresh and clear at the last as when she began. She has a voice of very wide compass, striking high E flat easily last night, and her execution is something marvellous in one so young. Her friends predict for her a great future."

Timothy Riordan, who has been visiting his two brothers in Iowa for the last few weeks, will be home about November 1. His health, which was very poor when he went away, has been considerably improved by rest and change of climate.

"A Contented Woman."

The presentation of Hoyt's "A Contented Woman" at Columbia opera house Tuesday evening was one of the best entertainments of its kind that has been seen on the local stage. The city was favored with the company that produced the piece in the large cities and the players was all that could be desired. The piece is a farce comedy, sparkling in its brightness, and is a keen satire on the woman's suffrage movement. No matter whether one agrees with the teaching of the comedy he is obliged to admit that Mr. Hoyt has made excellent use of the reform idea and has cuttishly presented the uncleanness of practical politics.

Misses Della and Blanche Philbrowne are visiting friends in Pittsfield.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE.

Men Wanted for a Connecticut Murder Found After Three Months.

Huntington, Conn., Oct. 27.—After a period of waiting, extending over nearly three months, the Bridgeport police succeeded in capturing Charles A. Bonal and David Weeks, wanted for the alleged murder of Farmer George Marcus Nichols at his home in Trumbull. The men were surprised at the house of Mrs. Bassett, the mother of Weeks, located in a portion of this town known as the Isinglass district.

The house had been constantly watched for some weeks, and Tuesday the much-wanted pair arrived there. Word was immediately sent to the Bridgeport police. Every avenue of escape was cut off and a descent was made upon the place. Bonal and Weeks were taken completely by surprise and, always desperate, attempted to draw revolvers. They were speedily overpowered and in a short time were captives.

It is firmly believed that Huntington has furnished a rendezvous for the desperate men almost from the very date of the tragedy. Residents of this village had begun to tell stories which warranted the belief that the men were in hiding within the confines of the town and their capture was possible. There was no hesitancy on the part of Huntington residents to assert that Bonal and Weeks have been in this section at frequent intervals since the perpetration of the deed.

The alleged rendezvous is located in a patch of woods about three miles from Huntington Center, and possibly a mile from Isinglass, where is located the home of Bonal's wife. In these woods is to be found a shanty occupied by Alfred Perry, a woodchopper and his wife. The rendezvous was visited by two reporters, to whom the following story was told: The day after the crime was committed, Charles Bonal entered the Perry shanty. He informed Mrs. Perry, to whom he was well known, and who is exceedingly fond of him, that he wished to bring a "pal" there. He was given permission, and later on the same day he returned with David Weeks. The latter was intoxicated and ugly. He carried a rifle, two revolvers and a knife, all of which he hurled on the table with an oath, adding "I would like to see those things dripping with blood." The two men were fed, and the next day they received newspapers containing accounts of the tragedy and the doings of the officers who were seeking their capture. For three or four days they remained in the woods, coming to the hut for their food. They then left to return at intervals, and since then the Perry hut has been their rendezvous. Mrs. Perry describes Bonal as "a splendid young fellow," and "her Weeks is a "tenor."

Earl Kemp Sentenced For Unlawfully Taking His Brother's Horse.

The continued case against Earl Kemp of Florida for taking his brother Henry's horse from the latter's barn on Florida mountain last week and allowing it to wander back home, was disposed of in district court this morning. The first charge was larceny but a new complaint had to be made, since no intent to dispose of or convert the horse was shown. The last complaint was for unlawful taking of a horse and it was on this charge that the defendant was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory for an indefinite period.

The Superior Court.

The Berkshire superior court sitting Tuesday was occupied with two small cases. The cases of John H. Tuttle, now of Milford, Ct., against Henry C. Woodin, appellant, were two actions tried together, one for one month's rent and pasturage of a cow, and the other was for four month's rent of a tenement in Great Barrington. The defendant set up that because Tuttle built a partition in the upper hall and slammed the doors in Woodin's tenement and occupied the latter's coal bin and committed other annoyances that it was an eviction under the law and he moved out. Judge Lilley's charge, and the first one of the sitting, was clear and an able presentation of the law on such matters. The jury found in one case $11 for Tuttle for the cow pasturage, in which there was no denial, and in the larger case they gave a verdict for Woodin, thus practically finding that the annoyances complained of amounted to an eviction.

The next case was that of Samuel H. Crum of North Adams, who sues William L. McAuley of Arlington, Vt., to recover about $50 due him for work in 1885, in the defendant's saw mill. The defense was that Crum had charged a higher rate of wages for some part of the work than was agreed on, and also that he had hired out for a year and had left before the term ended. The case was still on when the court adjourned Tuesday evening.

AT ADAMS TODAY

Nothing of late has been said about the new state road and no doubt many are wondering when the main road to Cheshire will again be opened to travel. In speaking with a TRANSMITTAL reporter Tuesday evening Contractor Shand said that considerable delay is being caused by the Berlin Bridge company of Berlin, N. Y. As stated before, a new bridge is to be put in over the brook that leads from the raceway at the old Jenkins mill. The stone work is finished and is of the strongest kind of masonry. Nearly all of the masonry work is finished and if the bridge was finished three days' work would leave the new road ready for travel. Mr. Shand received a letter this morning stating that the bridge had been shipped and men will be on to set it up at once. It will be the same as the bridge on Centre street, only on a smaller scale, with iron girders and the flooring will be of concrete. Those who have visited the road and seen Mr. Shand's work say it is very good and when all is done Mr. Shand will have reason to feel proud of his job.

Grand Conference. The grand conference to be held in Notre Dame church Friday evening promises to be largely attended, since already a large number of tickets have been sold. The conference will be under the auspices of the St. Jean Baptiste society and the proceeds are to be given to the new parochial school fund. The society will form in line in front of their hall on Commercial street headed by Lafayette band and march in a body to Notre Dame church where Monsieur D. Monet of the Ottawa parliament will deliver an address. The address over, all will repair to the old French church where an oyster supper will be served by the ladies of the church and Lafayette band will render one of their popular concerts. The admission to all will be 25 cents. No trace Frenchman should miss hearing Monsieur D. Monet's address, as he is a highly educated and instructive speaker.

Jack Doyle's Troubles. The papers throughout the county have had long articles about Jack Doyle and his troubles at Great Barrington the past week. Many of the reports differ and the true story probably is that the local man did indeed come to the farmers at Great Barrington and was arrested last Friday charged with drunkenness and the case was continued until Monday morning. Lawyer Cassidy of this town appeared for the defendant and he was discharged. He was re-arrested however, charged with conspiracy of fraud and the case will be tried next Monday morning.

Being cut into Building Lots. John Richmond is having the northwest corner of his pasture on Summer street, staked out into building lots and has already sold a couple of them. The place is a good one and is the grounds often used for picnics. There are many large elm trees, and although it spoils a pleasure resort, yet it will add much to the looks of North Adams street, which in a few years promises to be one of the principal streets of the town.

Moved Across the Track. The large house which is being moved by Contractor Hawkins of North Adams for John L. Barker, from Park to Summer street, was moved across the Boston & Albany railroad at the Park street crossing Tuesday evening after the last train North had gone. It was about 11 o'clock when the building was moved clear of the railroad and fully 100 people watched the work. By the end of the week the building will be at its new foundation and once more the town will have all its streets open.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Facts About the Water Supply—Booked for a Fast Trip—Want a Sunday Mail—Cotton Mill Crippled—A Victim of the Railroad Wreck—A Sweeping Mountain Fire.

The water was let into the new reservoir Monday, but owing to the severe drought the brook that feeds it is very low and it will take a long time to fill it unless rain comes soon. It will hold about 12,000,000 gallons and the old one holds 3,000,000, and it is believed the town will not soon suffer from a lack of water after the two reservoirs are once filled. The old reservoir has been repaired and is now in good order for service. It is thought that Williamstown uses more water in proportion to population than any other town in Western Massachusetts. According to measurements taken by Engineer Gear, who had charge of the construction of the reservoir, the town has during this dry spell been using 100,000 gallons every 21 hours from the East mountain reservoir in addition to the supply from the cold spring, which is supposed to furnish about one-third of the water used.

A Victim of the Wreck. E. A. Green of Chicago, a brother of Mrs. Fred Sanford of this town, was one of the victims of the Hudson river railroad wreck Sunday morning. He was 27 years old and unmarried, and was an architect employed by a Chicago firm. His mother is a widow and lives in Binghamton, N. Y. Mr. Green went to Chicago three years ago and had not since been home. He was going to New York on business for his company, and was then going to visit his mother. His death was caused by drowning. The remains were taken to Binghamton for burial, and Mr. and Mrs. Sanford left for that city Tuesday afternoon to attend the funeral.

Booked For a Fast Trip. N. H. Sabin and family sailed from New York Tuesday for Europe to spend the winter. They sailed on the Kaiser Wilhelm De Grosse of the North German Lloyd line. This is the new monster steamship which recently broke all ocean records and an attempt will be made to beat her own time on this trip.

Want a Sunday Mail. But little is heard about the postoffice campaign these days, but it is hoped that whoever is appointed postmaster will endeavor to get a Sunday mail to go west on the 8:10 p. m. train. This would take all mail for western and southern points and would, it is said, be a great accommodation to the people of the town, especially in the summer season.

Cotton Mill Crippled. The cylinder head of the engine in the cotton mill blew out Tuesday morning in consequence of which a part of the machinery was stopped. It will take several days to make the necessary repairs.

L. J. Gardner returned Tuesday from Marlboro, where he had been spending a few days with his son, Conductor H. L. Gardner of the Fitchburg railroad. The street railroad track has been removed from the bridge, which is now entirely clear for wagon travel. The work of paving the track in its new location made it necessary to transfer passengers Tuesday and today.

Some complaint is heard about the pipes for the water shut-off projecting so much above the level of the streets as they do in some places, as they are considered dangerous to horses and pedestrians. The streets have worn down considerably during the dry spell, which is probably one cause of the present prominence of the pipes.
